TEOS

Intelligent workspace solutions

In today's business, time may be our most precious resource. Any moment wasted has an impact on our job satisfaction – and on the bottom line. We put everything into our work. But between the emails, the meetings, the trips and the to-do lists, we've lost something.

We've lost the ability to move freely through the working day. To focus when the pressure's on. To step back and enjoy our achievements when it's off. All too often, it's our work space that limits us. It's not ideas that hold us back, it's physical spaces and connections.

At Sony, we've made it our mission to change that. We believe work spaces should perform for us – and demand nothing from us. Because when our work space performs, we have time to think. To create. To connect. To reflect.

To get the best out of our space, we need technology that balances control with flexibility. That makes it as easy to book a room as it is to share a presentation within it. That offers creative ways to inform and inspire employees and visitors. That's seamless, intuitive and robust.

The TEOS family of intelligent workspace solutions is designed to unlock productivity, creativity, communication and collaboration.

67% of organisations see “better collaboration with customers, colleagues and co-workers as a main driver of their workplace strategy”

Three key trends

Technology is advancing rapidly

Technology is transforming the way we connect and collaborate in the workplace. Denser, faster Wi-Fi networks and IoT devices are enabling smarter ways of working. These connected devices are generating more data than ever about the workplace.. How can we harness these advancements to make work processes more efficient?

More than 40% of IT decision makers say automation technology will have the biggest impact on their business.

Workers are evolving

The next generation of workers expect their workplace to be flexible, seamless and highly connected. They care about productivity and want to be able to work anywhere, anytime, on any device; they embrace agile, collaborative workplaces and cutting-edge technology that improves efficiency. How can we make sure these users are at the heart of the workplace strategy, without alienating older, established employees?

Millennials now make up half the global workforce.

Performance metrics matter

Advances in sensor technology and real-time data collection mean we can collect an abundance of information about employees and workplaces. As more areas of the workplace adopt IoT devices, employers are devising ever-more inventive ways to gather granular details and put the increasing flow of data to good use. How can we turn data into smart actions that will help people – and spaces – to perform?

More than 20 billion connected things will be in use by 2020, up from 8 billion in 2017.

“Sony’s solution perfectly matched our requirement for one single platform to manage all content. On average, we now save 45 minutes every day on updating content, allowing us to focus on tasks that create added value for our clients.”

With you every step of the way

Our dedication to making spaces perform runs through everything we do. Through this, we help to energise and inspire employees, impress visitors, simplify technology and empower AV/IT and facilities managers.

We plan to continue bringing our vision to life long into the future. We believe the next step to making people happier and more efficient at work is to provide automated, personalised experiences across the workplace. We're already experimenting with sensors, complete building management and virtual services.

We know every client is unique; you have your own specific goals, pressures and opportunities. So whether you're installing a single screen or equipping a new-build from top to bottom, we're here as a partner to advise you at every step.

"TEOS Manage is making a big difference to how we engage with staff and visitors. It's easy to use and helps us save energy. And I only see it growing with our needs as we move forward."
